Welcome to the Marvelous Work and a Wonder® Worldwide Radio Talk Show. At no time during the history of our world, has a place existed where a person can go and ask any question about their human existence, and have that question answered with authority, clarity, and completeness.

During this radio talk show, many of the great and marvelous things that have been hidden from our understanding since the foundation of this world will be revealed. We've always known these Real Truths. They exist—hidden in the back of our mind within the confines of our imagination. Within the human mind, seeds of imagination sprout into belief systems of philosophy and religion. But these do not answer the basic questions of our existence: Who are we? And why do we exist? Religion and philosophy have produced fruits of discord, prejudice, and hate. These things are destroying our humanity.

The purpose of the Marvelous Work and a Wonder® is to introduce the Real Truth about our existence as human beings. Within its answers, the solutions to our human problems are found. Most of our problems are a cause of our ignorance; and, our current experience upon this earth, manifests the influence of this ignorance. This show is where current reality meets Real Truth.

Welcome to the show. My name is Christopher. Today is March 18, 2018. I'm the messenger for the Marvelous Work and a Wonder®.

Tonight, in just one hour, I'm going to explain human reality unlike it's ever been explained before. I warn those of you who don't know much about this work, who are tuning into this for the very first time, or who might listen to it, as it will be archived, in the future. You might not want to listen. Because what this work does, what the Real Truth does, it negates about everything that this world thinks that it knows.

But the things that we're going to talk about tonight, makes sense. The things that I'm going to explain, science will prove someday. Science being our observation of the world and how we relate to the reality in which we exist as mortals upon this planet. Everything that I say tonight will one day be verified by science. Everything that I say will come to fruition. Therefore, this is probably the most important radio show that I've done.

Now, we started this show with an Introduction. ... I want to explain something to you folks. This is not my work. I was recruited and asked to be the messenger by four individuals who live upon this planet Earth who are very, very intelligent. Doesn't matter who they are. Doesn't matter how I have presented them in the past. It is their work! They found me. They recruited me. And asked me to be their messenger. What I'm going to tell you tonight is what they would tell you if they had the opportunity to speak to you. Someday they'll have that opportunity. But for now, they've asked me to.

Years ago, as they began to develop me as their messenger, they needed me to be able to talk to people into a mic. There's me alone in a studio right now, and I'm talking into a mic. That's very hard for a person to do. So, to train me to do that, so that I became more adroit at it, and was able to deliver the message better, they started these BlogTalkRadio shows, that allowed me to do this. That transitioned into MWAU TV show for a time. And we'll explain a little bit more about why those things didn't work and probably why they won't be in the future.

But, if you want to know the intelligence of these people, of these four people, these four men, they wrote that Introduction, one of them did. We needed an introduction for the show. One of them wrote that introduction in about 2 or 3 minutes. Sat down at my computer and typed it in. So I want you to listen again to the words of that Introduction, the introduction to this show. Listen carefully. Because that introduction gives an overview of what their work, what this work, is all about. So listen closely again. Radio introduction.

Welcome to the Marvelous Work and a Wonder® Worldwide Radio Talk Show. At no time during the history of our world, has a place existed where a person can go and ask any question about their human existence, and have that question answered with authority, clarity, and completeness.

During this radio talk show, many of the great and marvelous things that have been hidden from our understanding since the foundation of this world will be revealed. We've always known these Real Truths. They exist—hidden in the back of our mind within the confines of our imagination. Within the human mind, seeds of imagination sprout into belief systems of philosophy and religion. But these do not answer the basic questions of our existence: Who are we? And why do we exist? Religion and philosophy have produced fruits of discord, prejudice, and hate. These things are destroying our humanity.

The purpose of the Marvelous Work and a Wonder® is to introduce the Real Truth about our existence as human beings. Within its answers, the solutions to our human problems are found. Most of our problems are a cause of our ignorance; and, our current experience upon this earth, manifests the influence of this ignorance. This show is where current reality meets Real Truth.

That's right folks. I don't know—two or three minutes—at the most, five. He sat down and he wrote that introduction. That's how smart these guys are. They've been around a long time. They know a lot of things. First-hand experience. And now I'm going to tell you. I'm just going to summarize, exactly what's going to happen to us. And it's been printed. They were able to give this information to some degree through the social media posts that they have allowed until we get the official website done.

We're not going to make it. This solar system and everything about it and the human beings that belong to this solar system—we're headed to our own disaster. That's just what's going to happen. We have failed. We are failing ourselves. It doesn't matter what good intentions anyone has out there. We are failing to understand what it, what mortal life is all about, and what it takes to create peace on this earth—to stop the killing and the hate, the divisiveness—everything that causes turmoil to us as human beings. We are failing to get it.

For over a decade now, these [men], they've been working, with me as their messenger, through religion. Trying to utilize religion in a way that can open people's minds. It has failed miserably. It's failed! There's only one thing that's going to hopefully jolt the human race into listening to what our message is. And our message is all about equality. It's all about human equality folks. It's all about an individual existing in this world and believing that they, alone, that the individual self, is the greatest thing that exists. And that everyone else is the same. In other words, the equality of human reality that each person is equal. That's what everybody strives for. That's why everybody does what they do. Every single thing that a person has done that we might think is bad: from the shooting in schools, shooting of innocent children, to bombing people, to having wars, all these things. It's a person trying to establish their equality with other people. Trying to prove their value to other people. Everything.

Therefore, the things that these people have done, which we think in our minds are bad things, terrible things, are not. They are a cause of the inequality that we are experiencing upon this earth. Those gunmen, who took the lives of those innocent children. And granted folks, innocent children die every day around this world. Many from bombs. Many from war. But the people who are the perpetrators of what we see are evil acts, they're not evil acts! That's the hardest thing that people are going to be able to grasp. They are acts of desperation, in reality and in a world, in which these people, these individuals that exist, where they are not finding the value that they know they deserve. That each one of us, as a human being, deserves.

Because, we are the most important thing in our universe. We are the most important person in the universe, in our reality. That is a fact. And unless the human race understands that, correctly, and begins to live by that, we will end up destroying ourselves. But the other part of that is just as important: That we recognize every other person as equal to us. That is the root cause of all the misery that's taking place upon this earth. Every act.

If you were to go back and analyze the very last, the thoughts, the thinking patterns, that led up to the people who take other people's lives—who go in and shoot up innocent children in schools, who start wars, who plant bombs, who do what we call “terrorist” acts—you will find that their thoughts leading up to that act, were all about establishing their individual worth and value to everybody else in this world! That's right.

We are not going to make it this time, unless we learn those two principles. Number one: that each person is God. That is who God is. There is no other outside force—powerful, or in any other way—above the individual self. We must learn to love the self with all our heart, might, mind, and strength. And for those of you who just cringed because you think I'm quoting a New Testament “Jesus scripture,” you got it all wrong. The original Greek of that Scripture, the Jesus character supposedly said, was that you love yourself with all your heart, might, mind, and strength, and your neighbor as yourself! That's what it said. It was corrupt religious leaders who changed it to "God," so that they could control the people; because the people looked to religious leaders to tell them what "God" wanted them to do.

The problems in this world all stem from inequality. Poverty comes from inequality. So unless we equalize the world, or, how each of us sees our self, and how we see other people, this solar system will no longer exist in about 130 years. Sooner now; now that we know things that are happening, it'll happen sooner. We've explained, in the social media platforms, how this is going to be. It's very simple folks.

Most of you just go along with your life, whatever you're doing, and you don't consider the power of nuclear energy. You don't understand how powerful the nuclear weapons are that we have created. What happened in Hiroshima and Nagasaki (which was the first time that a nuclear weapon took people's lives), is nothing compared to what this world is going to experience. And if you think for a moment that it's going to come from one nation attacking another, you're gravely mistaken. It's going to come from that individual person, who inside his or her basement, is at this time developing the technology, by researching and having the education and the information available to them (through the Internet and other means), of developing a powerful weapon that the governments of this world don't know about.

Why do you think that person is thinking along those lines? Why do you think a human being is thinking it: "It's going to be good that I create, in my basement that nobody knows about... (Because, hell, everybody wants privacy! We all like our freedom. We don't want to be searched. We want to be able to do whatever we want in our basements!)? So this person, doing this, trying to create a nuclear weapon that is a thousand (1000) times more powerful than the bombs that destroyed Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Now some people will say, "Oh, it's just too hard to do that." Is it?? Is it?? How do you think those few men, those few scientists, were able to develop the atomic bomb in the first place? It was a theory that they had. They based it upon experimentation, and eventually they came up with a theory: "Hey, this just might be. This just might work." Well, I'm going to explain a little bit later on in this first hour exactly why atomic bombs weren't developed years ago, thousands of years ago. When it was the Greeks, who first understood about the atom. About those types of theories. But why, for thousands of years, didn't they come up with anything? They couldn't even come up with electricity! Nothing changed.

From the 1830s, about 1830, before that time, there's hardly any change in technology. Think about it! Sure, we developed gun power and stuff like that: little bombs here, little muskets there. But after that time, it all took off, in incredible ways. If you think that a normal, layperson, outside of science, outside of a government, outside of colleges and universities, research facilities, can't figure out how to create a nuclear explosion, a thousand (1000) times greater than any bomb that's ever been exploded, you're naïve. Look at the amount of information that's out there now! That's what the Internet does.

So let's get back to that individual who's thinking about those things; or who will think about those things in the future. Why would that individual say, "I am going to create this weapon and I'm going to set it off in the back of my car, in the middle of New York City—or some other major populated city, or in Europe even—and I'm going to destroy the entire city. And millions of people in a single blast"? Why would someone think of doing that?

The same cognitive patterns that any individual uses, to go into a school and kill innocent little children, is the same cognitive patterns (the thinking patterns) that this person is going to use to develop this type of bomb and then destroy millions of people. It's all about how that person feels in relation to the other people upon earth. Is that person being mocked? Is that person being seen as unsuccessful? As maybe not as beautiful? Maybe an ugly person; maybe a nerd; or whatever it is. All these terms that we've developed as human beings that have de-equalized us. Guaranteed: that same thinking pattern that this kid used to go in that Florida school and shoot up his fellow students, that same thinking pattern will be used in the future, to do that devastating thing.

We know—because of the lack of success that we've had, trying to generate things and trying to get things, the message spread, through this work—we know that there's no other option. At that time, people will start wondering, "What is going on?" The religious people will say, "How did God let this happen? How did God let a person develop a nuclear device in their basement and then put in their car, transport it to some major city, and explode it and kill millions of people?" At that time, people will start to think, "Where is God? What's going on?" And no, Jesus isn't coming at that time. And there's going to be no God that saves us.

The thing we have to look at is, "Why did a human being, who was born into this world as a child, develop with the capacity, the mental capacity, to do that: to want to end human existence for so many innocent people? It's all about what I explained. Therefore, the only way the human race can avoid that scenario in the future is if we can explain human reality, if we understand human reality (because none can explain it except us), unless we understand human reality, where all of us are equal, where each person believes that he or she, or even an un-gendered person, is just as valuable and just as important as everybody else. Unless we can generate, spread, fertilize, and nurture that feeling in every human being, we are headed for that type of destruction. That will be the warning.

That explosion that destroys millions of people at one time, with a powerful explosion, will be a warning. If after that, this world does not wake up, and does not listen to the message that we put out, that we're going to put out in this final book—then the next explosion (which will happen in about 50 years after that that)—that next explosion, will be caused from an individual who has studied it out in their mind and they have figured it out how the sun was created. And by using laboratory skills in which they can create a vacuum environment in their own basement, they will create a sun. And when they do, when they create that type of explosion, it'll wipe out this entire solar system. Extinguish our sun and extinguish itself. And our solar system as we know it will cease to exist! Cease to exist.

Now these are some pretty harsh warnings folks. Some pretty harsh warnings that I'm giving, but everything that I just said will come true and to fruition, if we do not make any headway into equalizing people's sense of the self and sense of love for themselves and for each other, other people. It will not, this type of feeling will not come from religion. Religion is the most divisive and evil thing that we've ever come up with. Just think about it. Think about exactly what it does. And I'm going to review it here in just a few minutes: go through the whole world history in a matter of a half hour!

And then we'll open up the lines for questions. We've got one hour for me to explain it. And then you guys got an hour to call in and ask me some questions. So I gave the warning. Now if it was up to me, years ago, I didn't have any faith in this work from the beginning. I didn't want to do it. I was convinced that there was a possibility, that we always have the possibility, if there wasn't a possibility that we could make this work, we wouldn't be here. We would be conscious. I'll explain that in a minute. So I wanted the opening song, the introduction to these radio broadcasts, I'm going to play a little bit for you: what I wanted it to be. It's called "The Final Countdown," by Europe. It's a group back in the 70s. ...I'm going to play it for you, just the very first part. But let me read the lyrics for you, the ones I'm going to play. It's called, "The Final Countdown." Again, this is what I wanted to play to introduce the radio show, back in the day. It says:

We're leaving together
 But still it's farewell
 And maybe we'll come back
 To earth, who can tell?
 I guess there is no one to blame
 We're leaving ground, We're leaving ground
 Will things ever be the same again?
 It's the final countdown
 The final countdown

Listen how powerful this is; just those few words.

[Music plays:]

[The Final Countdown
Europe]

We're leaving together,
 But still it's farewell
 And maybe we'll come back
 To earth, who can tell?
 I guess there is no one to blame
 We're leaving ground (leaving ground)
 Will things ever be the same again?

And that's why we have free will. That's why it seems so real. The proof of this is going to come with science. You watch. You watch what science is able to do in the future. You watch. What they're able to do with the brain.

So, when all that happens, and we finally figure out, "Well, this is all a dream." Then were going to have to try to understand, "Well, how? How can it be a dream? And how did it all start? How did life on this planet actually start?" Obviously, this isn't our first time. If you consider: the Earth is billions of years old; much older than five, six billion years. Science terrorizes things. But during the time of the Earth's existence, it only exists for the sake of human beings. Human beings, human society, has developed many times in the past. Five different times in the past.

So I'm going to take you back for a moment to the very first time that we as advanced human beings began to dream this experience. As we connected with each other, and we started to dream, in what we call the solar system. At the very beginning, there was only one planet: the Earth. There wasn't even a moon. There was just the Earth and the sun. The sun gives all the power to the Earth. The Earth was mainly land. It wasn't mostly water. It was land. There was a lot of water in the atmosphere; but over time—through the science, through technology, through what humans did, eventually, to the Earth—they created all this water. What good is the water to us? We can't live in it. Fishes do.

Now, of course, a lot of these details are going to be handled and explained perfectly in the upcoming book: The Dream of Mortal Life. But I want you to consider for a moment what our first dream experience was. Think about what your dream experiences are now. As you go to sleep, your dreams, are a convoluted conglomerate, or it's a bunch of experiences that you've had in life and are having in life, all mixed in together, 'til you have these weird experiences that you seemingly can't control, because you can't, during your mortal dreams at night. All these experiences are based on something that you've experienced, something that you've experienced in the past: either during the day, or years ago, or in your childhood, or some different time. That's how your dreams are. That's how they're invented.

Think about the very first pure dream that we had, that we all had as advanced humans when we started this process—this mortal life process, when this Earth existed for the first time. As we came to be. We didn't have any bad experiences. We didn't have any animals there that were eating us. We weren't killing each other. We were fearful of each other. We weren't doing anything except existing. So, that's how we became. That's how the first humans became in the first dispensation of human time. They began to exist, with the help of advanced human beings that were part of the dream sequence that allowed each of us to develop as a child. As an infant.

In the beginning, we weren't created from coming out of a woman. That's the most destructive thing that can possibly happen. And I'm not going to go into exactly how we got to that point this time. But the fact is, all of us lived on this planet. Every single one of us began to dream. We connected to the dream sequence and the dream experiences together, collectively, all at the same time! And we had no foundation for misery, for pain, for sorrow, for spiders, for snakes, for all these things that we fear. We had no basis in those things. Our world was perfect! It was a perfect planet: planet Earth.

And we were able to develop. And as we developed, we had the knowledge and the technology taught to us by advanced humans, who were the ones raising us and providing us with the ability to learn for ourselves. We had the technology where our bodies grew to a certain age, about the early 20s for a woman and the late 20s for a man, for a male, and that's where we aged. We didn't age anymore! There were no sicknesses! There were no diseases! There was nothing that was on our Earth during the first dispensation of human time that could kill us. That could cause us misery. Why? Because it's a dream happening inside the head of advanced human beings. Advanced human beings, who, they don't have any misery on their planet. They don't have animals that eat each other! They don't have any of the problems that we have. All those problems: all the spiders, all the amoebas, all the bacteria, all the viruses, all the dinosaurs, all the lions with big teeth, everything that you fear—they were all created by human beings. Human beings who began to see. They began to have the knowledge of how to control nature. How to control, how to make a pet.

How do you make a little Chihuahua? Nature doesn't! A Chihuahua can't evolve! A Chihuahua wouldn't last a second in the wild! Everything can beat up a Chihuahua, because they are fearless and they'll go after a lion, or they'll go after a snake, or whatever, and they'll just get eaten. It's ridiculous. Every single thing that exists upon this planet, every virus, every bacteria, every animal, every plant, is human made, according to our free will and what we wanted to happen. As humans exist on this planet, it can provide the perfect place, well in the beginning, the first dispensation of time, which is billions of years ago, it all started out very well. It was a great place to live.

There wasn't water. There was bodies of freshwater, but there weren't all these other bodies of water. We did all that! I'm not going to go into detail of all of that. We'll explain it a little bit in the book. Thus, we wanted to control the weather. We created the moon. That's what the moon does. It helps to control cycles of how the oceans work, how the water works. It didn't exist at that time. There were no other planets in our solar system but this one. We are the ones that determined after a long period of time of living, basically endlessly—"life everlasting," at that point—we decided! We began to see that we were developing differently and there were different, we have differences of opinions of what made each of us happy.

We generalize those of course, into three basic groups of human beings: 1) Those who want to be served. Who exist to be served by others and by life and just want to have fun with it all. 2) Those who serve themselves, who don't want to be served; that don't want anybody serving them, and they don't want to serve other people. 3) And the other ones are those who want to serve the people. Who get a great amount of joy off of providing people with happiness. And so we generally, we generalize human beings, the 15.07 billion of us, who belong to this solar system, into those general categories.

We began to see that we couldn't gain the happiness and have the happiness that each of us desired in these particular groups, together. Because we lived there for a long time. And then people started developing all these weird things. All these weird plants and animals and insects and things. We learned how to do that. When one of our friends, Joe blow down the street, he develops a fly, just to bug us. Just trying to be funny, he develops a fly! The fly comes over and bugs us, lands on us. We go, "Who did that? Joe, you made that fly?" "Yep!" And then, we said, "Okay, well we're going to counter that. I'm going to create a spider."

That's exactly how it all happened folks! It doesn't matter what science thinks they know. That's exactly how everything got started on this planet: human beings creating them for their sake. That's why we're the only species that live upon this planet that recognize the beauty of other species. We love to see butterflies. We love to see birds. We love to see these incredible insects. These incredible fish. Everything. We love it! Because we created them all. Not as some gods! We created them as mortal beings. Just like we create species today. Just like we created the Chihuahua dog. We did that. We created domesticated animals. We created a long-stemmed rose. We created the flowers that we love and enjoy, by inter breeding, hybrid breeding.

The first time we tried this, everything was perfect. Everything was wonderful. Then after almost a couple million years of living that way, we started messing up bad. We didn't get it right with our technology in creating other planets. That's why we have those planets here now. They've been around for billions of years. They were our attempts to break off from each other and go live somewhere else, which wasn't the plan. It's not how the Dream works. So we were never allowed to do that; and we never will be allowed to do that.

You think you're going to colonize Mars, then go ahead, idiots. Just get up there and put a bubble around you, because that's where you're going to be living. It was meant for this dream experience that we all live together on this planet for certain reasons. And those reasons were this: so that we could enjoy the differences that we have. That we could understand that we are all equal: all equal in power, in glory, in everything, in every way. And we had the ability and the knowledge to do a lot of things, just like I explained. From creating a fly, to creating a spider to eat that fly. We did all those things. From the largest dinosaur to the smallest. Every fish in that ocean, every single thing about it, amoeba. Everything was created by a human being.

Now science doesn't want to consider that. Their idea of a Big Bang and all of the sudden, everything just came to be. No, folks. No. It all started out with a perfect dream sequence; a pure dream sequence in which we as human beings, of course, advanced human beings, are going to dream what we know, what we experience.

Over time, as it progressed millions of years and billions of years, our dreams have gotten worse and worse and worse. Because we've never been able to develop a culture on this Earth that's lasted forever. We've tried five different times in the past. And each time, we tried something new. Each time. We separated the landmasses; we did all kinds of things, trying to make it work. But during all these times, we were not allowed to know the Real Truth about who we are and why we exist. We just exist. As human beings upon planet Earth. And as we exist, we don't know that we're advanced humans, playing a game, or dreaming. It's explained to us, but it's clinical. And you just say, "Okay, well that's a good theory." But we don't really know! So the Real Truth isn't known. It was never known. We just existed and we lived like a little child. A little child doesn't think about who they are and why they exist; they just live! That's how we were for all that time.

But because the Real Truth was never known, we kept blowing it. So this final time, we decided that maybe, perhaps, if we all knew the Real Truth about who we are and why we exist, the Real Truth about the Earth, you know all those layers you see, as you go down to see the mountains. You divide a mountain, I mean, cut a mountain away, and you'll see all the different levels of billions of years of Earth's existence. Well, in those levels, you could find human DNA. You could find remnants of our ancestors, of us, who lived a different life, a different incarnate.

So the purpose this time around is for us to have the Real Truth. We are allowing ourselves to develop technologies that give us hope; that bring to our minds certain aspects of the Real Truth. That's why all these movies are coming out. That's why everything is developing where we're starting to think, "Is this really a dream? Is this? Could it be? Could that be what it is?"

And we're starting to connect to the Real Truths that our true selves know; and we do that through our imagination, through our dreams. We can't imagine something that wasn't in our mind, or wasn't real, in some way. That's why, when I was a kid, we used to imagine a Dick Tracy watch, where we could talk to our friend on our watch. You couldn't really do that. And nobody ever thought, "Oh really, that's never going to happen!" "Really?" Look what we can do now!

I know of a guy back in the early 1800s, who happened to be delivered a "cell phone" that had existed in another time period from many many, many, many, years ago. Who, he could actually speak to someone else who had a similar type of device, who wasn't even in the room. What was this guy supposed to say, "Hey, I'm talking to somebody on these rocks? Uh, they're not here, but they're thousands of miles away." Or they could be 10 miles away, or whatever. They're not in the room. The other people of that time would've said, "What the hell are you talking about? There's no such...!" What do you say? What does he call it? A cell phone? There's no such thing. There wasn't even electricity back then! They didn't know electricity. They didn't have radio frequencies. They didn't know anything about those things. But anyways.

Here's the deal. We went through this time period. We've been trying. That's all history is. History that you read and study out in school, that's not true history. It's a farce. It was a history written by historians trying to bring value to themselves, again. Who are saying, "This is what happened back in that time period." "Based on what?? You weren't there! You weren't there during the time that the Roman Empire fell. You don't have any idea what happened when there was a division between the Western and Eastern Roman Empire!" Well, we do.

Because that was the first time that we allowed certain divisions, without allowing our mortal selves to develop electricity and the type of technology that we've allowed ourselves now, during these “End of Times,” during the great Roman Empire, we began to develop certain things. That's why that Empire was so successful for a time. But then, this success, this technology, this worldly success, turned into DE-quality and division that we couldn't overcome. We just couldn't overcome it. And therefore, we just let it all be destroyed. And it was. It was destroyed.

Religion is the result of people not understanding who they are and why they exist. It's the result of men and women or whoever invents these crazy ideas that there's some power, some higher power outside of you, that can control you and is responsible for you, or even is aware of you. There just isn't folks! There isn't any such power! And a lot of religious people, they're probably going to hang up, or not listen anymore. Well they can all they want! But their grandkids are going to look back on their grandparents for going to church and believing in all these crazy things, as fools. That's right.

The Christian, Islam, Muslim, Jewish, whatever these major religions are throughout the world, are going to be the mythology of the future. Just like the Greek and Roman mythologies are mythologies to us today.

The only thing that's going to matter is what we do as human beings. We are completely, 100% responsible for this Earth and what goes on in it. No one is going to come and save us. No one caused the problems, except us. And no one's going to come and save us, except us. And again, as I warned in the beginning, it is the final warning. If we do not grasp that very important principle about human equality and start to incorporate things within our society that demonstrates our understanding that we are all equal, then we will allow our mortal selves to be destroyed. Because the intent and purpose for this dream sequence, happening upon this earth, is for all of us to be able to come inside this dream, to have the mortal experience, with free will.

The ability to do what we want to, not what we are forced to do by another human being. Free will is the key! That's the key. Everyone should be and must be afforded free will to act and be acted upon according to how they want. We must develop a world like that. Thus, those men who've been around a long time, who know things, they developed a perfect solution for us. The perfect political platform. The perfect social plan that will enable us to get it: to live together in peace and harmony! That's what The Humanity Party®'s all about.

Here's the problem with our world, folks. Time. Only at this time during the entire history of the world has information been available to everybody. We, as The Humanity Party®, have outlined the perfect plan to solve poverty throughout the world. It's a plan that works! It'll work! Well, let's even go even closer to that. We have developed a plan that can eliminate child prostitution within a week! One week! And it will work! And no one can prove that it won't work. It will eliminate child prostitution throughout the world! Who wouldn't back that plan!?? The plan is there. Why can't we get anybody, why hasn't it gone viral? Can it go viral?

Can billions of people see this plan? Yes they can! Can billions of people see a guy dancing around and singing a popular song, or some rhino pooping? Yes they can! Or some puppy doing some funny thing? Billions of people can see it. How many hits are on those things? But our plan, this simple plan, that's undeniable, that will work, doesn't get anybody to pass it on. Because our mortal selves are so disconnected from the reality of our humanity, each human being, the children...to young adults...to adults, they are thinking about one thing only: themselves.

They are thinking about their own lives and the power that they think controls their lives, whether it be a God, or a success idol. Something else is giving people the value and worth. They're seeking for it; they're not finding it! But they're seeking for it. Because the world has made the decision to ignore these incredible plans, these incredible truths. Our true selves, the advanced humans that are actually responsible for this, have basically disconnected from their mortal self. The dream is occurring...In the advanced human's mind, the dream is occurring just like a song plays in your head over and over again. You can't stop the song, but it continues to play. And there are certain physical responses that mortal dream experience give to the advanced human.

Just like our brain. Just like when we dream at night, here on this Earth. When we go to sleep, we dream at night. Our body reacts to the dreams. We sweat; we cry; we can have an orgasm in a dream! And so there are physical stimulations that an advanced human being is getting, evening being disconnected. What "being disconnected" from their mortal self is doing, is just allowing it to play out. But mortals are going to get a shock, and I explained what that is.

In the near future—it's not going to happen in the near, near future—a nuclear bomb set off a thousand (1000) times more powerful than anything the world has ever known. It's not going to be done by a government; it's going to be done by somebody who developed the technology in their basement, behind the scenes, who destroys millions of people. And then at that time, at that time, those four men, who are my mentors, who know what they're talking about, if the technology allows, they will reveal themselves. They're not going to taunt the world and say "We told you so!" They're just going to explain the reality of what life's all about.

Because we can develop the technology and the ability to live, basically forever! Eliminate disease, sickness, eliminate aging. And we can live on this planet, once we heal it and use the natural laws correctly, we can turn it back into a world in which we all can live, perfectly. Because that's what this world could do. That's what humans can do. They can control the laws of nature for their own benefit, once they learn how to do it.

But, if then, when that happens, when they finally say, "Well, we got the plan. The Humanity Party®'s had the plan all along; and the Marvelous Work and a Wonder gives you the truth about who we are as human beings. If the world still rejects that, and they still look to something that's not real, or they still are determined to bring value only to themselves, and not to value their neighbor as they do themselves, then it's only a matter of about 50 years, before that person will develop the technology to create a sun. And end this entire solar system.

Now. We exist. You're listening to me. I'm still a mortal. You're still a mortal. So there must be some hope. Some possibility that perhaps we might get it. It sure seems a long ways away now, because this world ignores simple solutions. Kids nowadays are growing up to become "the best." They want to be valued as "the best," according to world's standards. And they're failing.

There's a show in the United States, I'm sure many of you are aware of. It's called American Idol. Literally tens of thousands of people try out for that. And only a few get to go on. What about those other thousands of people that get rejected, that never get to go on? That's where their value was. That's a value of their life, in their singing and their ability, their artistic ability in music. And they're denied that?? How do you think they feel?

Drugs are rampant, and they are going to continue to increase. Because of what? People are trying to deflect the emotion of not being valued and feeling of any worth to anybody. Not even to themselves. You see people on the street who are incredible musicians, who can sing and play the guitar, or piano, whatever. You see artists of spectacular talent, on the street, homeless! They're doing whatever they can to get people to buy their works of art. Homeless! That's ridiculous! Shouldn't a human being, if they have any artistic ability, or any ability at all, shouldn't they be able to feel equal with everybody else?

Let me return again to that first dispensation of human time, where everything worked perfectly. Nobody competed with each other. We developed androids and other nonliving life forms, with our technology, to play sports against each other. The wars that were during that time, they weren't wars that involved any real person. There were wars like you have on these computer games now. Nobody, the actors and actresses and the entertainers at that time, they weren't human beings. They were all created by people. Human beings were equal in every single way.

Production, the goods and services that provided us with the basic necessities of life during that first dispensation of human time: everything was free. There was no such thing as money. That's ridiculous! (At first.) It developed that way. Eventually, we destroyed ourselves. And we'll explain more of that in detail in the upcoming book of how that first people, that first group of us, ended up destroying ourselves, when we had so much available to us!

There are so many cool things about the Real Truth, about who we are, why we exist, what's happening in this world. But they are only things that this work can give to the world. It's funny isn't it, we offer it for free. We don't ask for donations. We don't ask for anything. We give it for free! Free of charge.

They have taken me out of the public view. I'm not going to appear in public anymore. I'm going to be a messenger. I don't know if we're going to have any more of these BlogTalkRadio shows are not. That will totally depend on if the world wants to know! The book that's coming out and everything that we're telling them. Then they don't deserve the Real Truth. They deserve the misery. They deserve to stumble if they will, until the misery that they experience, upon this earth, is so overwhelmingly powerful and emotionally debilitating that the people start thinking, "What in the hell do we really know? What are we doing to each other? Why are we trying to go into space when we got unlimited amount of poverty down here, that can be solved?! What are we doing?! How did we allow a person to have the knowledge, the means, the materials to develop a nuclear weapon of such capacity that it wipes millions of us out? And how do we stop it?"

We have those answers folks. And nobody else does. This work is about healing this world.
